SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 24.—(Special Dispatch.) Advices received from Shang hai by steamer last night, give some in teresting details about the murder of the French explorer, Dutruil de Phins, near Lhassa last June, furnished by his companion, M. Grenard, who reached Shang hal January 15. The two explorers started out in 1899 and the first year was spent in Chinese Turkestan, climbing the high mountains between that country and Thibet. Much of this mountainous country had never been explored. The next year they failed to reach Thibet over these mountains but the third year they were successfu in crossing the mountains, and they pene trated within three day's journey of Lhassa, when they were met by the Chin-Lineasa, when they were not by the characteristic of that city, accompanied by two high Thibetan of-ficials and some high Limas. They thought these officials were very polite, as they furnished them liberally with supplies. It was evident, however, they were not to see the sacred city. So after a wait of about fifty days, they set out for Shening. The Limas were very hostile, and when they reached the upper Yangts-Twe they were attacked by robbers, who, Grenard learned afterward, were incited to this crime by the Limas. They had only one Russian soldier with them, the natives being uruble to use guns. The natives being uruble to use guns. The robbers were posted at the end of a deep defile, and without warning opened fire. Almost at the first volley De Phins fell with a fatal wound in the abdomen. Grenard and the Russian made a rude barricade and returned the shots until all the summunition was exhausted. Then they proceeded to a neighboring Limasary, leaving De Phins, who was too badly wounded to walk. Grenard tried to recover his effects, but validy, as he was not allowed to return to the scene of the fight. He was told De Phins died the day after the fight, and his body was thrown into Notwithstanding the determination of Justice Field to remain on the Supreme bench until some Democratic President besides Cleveland may appoint his suclast, and the members of his family endeavor to convince him that he should stop hard work. Justice Field is now nearly 80 years of age, and while his mind is still sound, he finds it impossible to concensound, he finds it impossible to concen-trate his mental powers as he did even five years ago, making it so much harder for him to keep up with his share of the work. Issociated Press Leased-wire Service.

RALEIGH (N. C.,) Feb. 24.—There is RALEIGH (N. C.,) Feb. 24.—There is a wide misunderstanding over a so-called Douglass adjournment by the General Assembly of North Carolina, and in connection with it there have been statements which do not present the matter accurately. The actual facts are as follows:

On the day after the death of Frederick Douglass, a colored representative named Crews offered a resolution providing that the House adjourn at 12 o'clock noon, as a mark of respect to Mr. Douglass. Mr. Crumpter, a Populist, offered an amendment to make the hour 2 o'clock, which was the 'regular hour of adjournment. was the regular hour of adjournment. Speaker Walser ruled the amendment and resolution both out of order, saying that the House would not adjourn until the business of the day was disposed of. He then suggested that a motion might be made that when the House did adjourn, it would do so as a mark of respect. A stand-ing vote on a motion to this effect was taken and was adopted. The Senate branch of the Legislature took no notice whatever of the death of Douglass.

COLUMBUS (O.,) Feb. 24.—Rt. Rev John A. Watterson, bishop of the Columbus diocese, addressed a big meeting of the Y.M.C.A. to day. As many persons as gained admittance to the ball were turned away. This is the first time in history that a Catholic clergyman had addressed a meeting under the austices. ed a meeting under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A., and naturally attracted wide attention. The bishop was intro-duced by General Secretary W. T. Parkins nad spoke for an hour and a half on "Christian Citizenship," the audience being held in rapt attention and frequently breaking into applause. When the bishop vanced on the platform the applaus counted to an ovation, and he thanker the audience for their generous welcome the audience for their generous welcome. It showed him, he said, that they did not regard him as a buil in a china shop, especially a papal bull in the beautiful china shop of the Y.M.C.A. AT DEATH'S DOOR.

Serious Illness of Col. Harry I. Thornton. By Telegraph to The Times.

FRESNO, Feb. 24.—(Special Dispatch.) Col. Harry I. Thornton of San Francisco, was taken sick at the Grand Central Hotel here a few days ago. At first it was not considered his condition was serious, but on Friday last he had grown so much worse it was though best to notify his family, which was done.

short time they decided to telegraph for the family physician, Dr. E. Parsons of San Francisco.

The sickness had developed into congestion of the lungs of a most dangerous character, urited with other ailments.

Col. Thornton spent much of his time in Fresno in the past, and has been here frequently for several years. As an officer of the Fresno Canal and Irrigation Company, he has been largely identified with the business interests of the county.

After 6 o'clock last evening Col. Thornton grew rapidly worse and telegrams were sent to San Francisco for Dr. Parsons to make haste. A special train was ordered, and it left Oakland soon after and made the run to Fresno in five hours.

Dr. Parsons reached the patient's bedside only in time to speak with him before Thornton lapsed into unconsciousness. Dr. Parsons stated tonight that Thornton might live a few hours, and possibly through the night, but there was no hope of recovery. There were at times some faint indications of improvement in his condition, but these were of short duration, and he continued to sink as night wore away.

Col. Thornton since he came to this State from Alabama in early days has been prominently identified with the trotting turf. He was an authority upon all questions relating to harness horses and ting turf. He was an authority upon all questions relating to harness horses and races, and bred some animals which have developed into distinguished performers. He was a lawyer and judge in the northern part of the State for many years, and was well known on the Comstock. He had intended that his breeding farm near Fresno should be a model of its kind. The buildings are finished, and his horses were to have been moved there the first of next month.

HOLY BIBLE

Col. Ingersoll Lectures on It.

Attempts Made to Prevent it Failed.

Detectives Attend it to Stop Any Blasphemous Utterances.

The Lecturer Believes There is One Thing Sure, it is That the New Jersey Legislature is Not Inspired.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.-The attempts made to prevent Col. Robert Ingersol from delivering his lecture on the "Holy Bible" at the Hoboken Theater tonight proved a failure. As the result of a pro test issued by the pastors of three of the most prominent churches in that place Mayor Fagan vesterday issued orders that tically debarring Col. Ingersoll from appearing. The Mayor's decree occasion great deal of comment last night with the result that the matter was reconsidered today.

Before noon Corporation Attorney Minturn and Mayor Fagan called upon the Rev. H. T. Beatty, the minister who is at the head of the reform movement in Hoboken, and stated that it was the opinion of the Corporation Attorney that no steps could be taken by the authorities to stop the lecture. Shortly after noon a consultation was held in Chief of Police Donovan's office, at which, in addifion to the chief, the Mayor and Mr. Clark manager for Col. Ingersoll, and Mr. Davis the manager of the theater, were present. The two managers were informed of the decision of the Corporation Attorney and they departed with the assurance that the lecture might take place. To prevent any disturbance on the part of the audience, and also to stop any blasphemous utterand also to stop any blasphemous utter-ances on the part of the lecturer, sev-eral detectives were sent to the theater. Beyond frequent bursts of applause, the audience was most orderly and the speaker confined himself almost entirely to his confined himself almost entirely to his text, with an occasional comical allusion to the clergymen of Hoboken and the statute of New Jersey laws to which the reformers had been referring. He began his well-known lecture without reference to the attempt to stop him until he had reached a point in the discourse for which evidently he had been waiting—where he alludes to the ignorance and savareery in the Bible. He broke away and savagery in the Bible. He broke away from his text long enough to say:

"There was enacted a statute in the State of New Jersey a hundred or so years ago, when most of the inhabitants were savages, which says that nobody shall ever discuss the Bible, except on one side. Since then the inhabitants have grown more civilized. They have grown to have a knowledge of fair play; they have been civilized to a degree where they can realize that that statute eleeps in the dimness of the past. It has been invoked can realize that that statute eleeps in the dimness of the past. It has been invoked by a number of narrow-minded persons, who should have lived 100 years ago. I don't blame them. Their heads are of that shape, and they are not to blame."

He said his audience could make up their minds "in secret" about what he had to say, for he believed "there was no statute against that." That the Bible was inspired he had some doubt, "but," he added, "if the Legislature of New Jersey says the Bible is inspired, it is, and that settles it."

Col. Ingersoll grew more bitter as the lecture progressed, and declared there never was any kindness in the heart of a priest, and he believed that there were persons in Hoboken today who would be glad to bring fagots and build a fire around own the Norma. But that is about what it amounted to.

Walker's story is that he did not really own the Norma. but that she was "in glad to bring fagots and build a fire around one of their enemies. He said that no criminal lawyer in the State of New Jertoy would allow a minister on the jury that was to try a client of his. It was surprising, he said, further on, how much these persons knew of God and how little they knew of human nature.

The professor had also said that "the death of Jesus, like the Jewish sacrifice, only saves symbolically," and that "the fall of man was bollocally, and that the rail of man was not from true hokness, but from childish innocence." The latter statement involved the question of evolution, to which Woodworth firmly adheres as a good method of reasoning both for science and for Christiants.

reasoning both for science and for Christianity.

Some of the members of the church arraigned against Prof. Woodworth say they will take the matter before the Academic Senace and the Board of Regents of the university, arguing that if a man is unfit, because of his heresies to teach a Sunday-school, he is not a proper person to instruct the students at the university. To this Prof. Woodworth says that to eliminate his teachings at the University of California they must eliminate science and nut in orthodox clergymen of the old school who will teach as truths traditions and legends that are no more valuable, except symbolically, than the myths and legends of ancient Greece.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 24.—Among the arrivals on the steamer Gaelic from Honolulu was F. D. Walker of the schooser Norma who, according to the stories circulated, was asked to leave the republic for the republic's good.

Mr. Walker denies this and tells a tale of how he left on commercial business. Walker was originally from Victoria, B. C., and went to the islands first five or six years ago. There have been suspicions for a long time that he was engaged in opium smuggling from British Columbia to Hawaii and not long since the Norma was believed to have unlyaded a lot of arms for the revolutionism at one of the islands. John Patton and Louis Stevens finally left the crowd at the air-shaft and tried to get to the cage-shaft. They never reached it, but were afterward found dead near the engine room. One of the men had his head almost beaten into a pulp, indicating that he had tried to kill himself rather than suffocate to death. Senator Dolph held 37 votes solid enough to defeat an election up to 11:15 p.m., at which time a recess was taken for five minutes. The excitement was growing intense, and it was evident that if Oregon was to have two Senators in the next Senate something must be done at once, as midnight, the hour set for final adjournment, was rapidly approach-

It was evident some action had been decided upon by the Dolph men. He spoke for a couple of minutes, and when he mentioned the name of McBride the house broke into a wild hurrah. He then recorded his vote for McBride, who had receding Republican whose name was called voted for McBride, who had received 45 votes—the number necessary to a choice—amid the greatest confusion and cheering. A motion was made to have all the Republican votes recorded for McBride, and it was carried with a rush. McBride, therefore, received 72 votes, being that of every Republican in the Legislature.

He was in no sense a candidate for the office, though his name had been mentioned in connection with the Senatorship.

The contest has been a remarkable one in many respects. One month before the Legislature met it was considered a certainty that Senator Dolph would have no opposition for re-election, but from that time until the Legislature met the free silver men began a campaign to defeat his re-election. They had no particular candidate, but simply were opposed to Dolph on account of his views on the money question. On the second day of the session the Republicans went into caucus when Dolph received the unanimous nomination.

He received a majority in the Senate, but lacked one in the House, his total vete, however, in the two houses foooted up 48, a majority of 2.

The next day in joint session four more votes left him, which prevented his election by one vote. He continued to drop off from day to day, until his support gut dewn to 35. The opposition stood firm, and it became evident several days age that Dolph could not be elected, though his supporters agreed to stand by him to the last. Rather than cause a deadlock, however, they yielded at the last moment and brought forth MoBride, upon whom all factions could unite, and he was elected on the sixtieth ballot.

In 1882 he was elected to the Oregon House of Representatives and was subsequently chosen Speaker of that body. In 1886, Mr. McFride was nominated by the Republicans for Secretary of State and was elected. His popularity 's attested by the fact that the two principal nominees on the ticket with him—Governor and Treasurer—were defeated. Mr. McBride performed the duties of his office so satisfactorily that he was renominated by acclamation in 1890, and re-elected by a handsame majority. He served out the full term and retired the first of the present year to give way to his successor.

Low Bank Rate.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Only during the two worst periods of the present century has the bank rate remained at 2 per cent., once for thirteen, and another time for sixteen months. Beyond a light hardening of rates on account of the new American loan, there is no visible prospect of a change, the rush for bonds here indicating an anxiety to find a fair investment. It has been estimated that had the new issues been made as gold, instead of coin bonds, the price would have been 130 instead of 119. Business in the stook market was only moderate, but the tone was altogether better, except for consuls, which were sold to provide money for the new American loan. Most investments advanced, but the London Waterworks stock fell from 10 to 15 per cent. during the week, the question being before Parliament for county councils buying the companies out. Foreign securities, including Argentines, were dull. Egyptian securities were down, on rumors of trouble between the Khedive and Baron Cromer, the British agent and Consul-Georat at Cairo.

eral Deficiency Appropriation Bill.

While it is understood that there will probably be spasmodic attempts to get up other measures of general importance, the best opinion is that none of these will be successful in cases where there is objection. It is possible that Senator Butler will renew his efforts in behalf of the pooling bill and that Senator George will also attempt to restore the bankruptcy bill to its position as the unfinished business, but it is not in the least probable that the efforts of either will be successful. Senator Faulkner is also hopeful of securing consideration of the Territorial admission bills, but there is no longer a possibility of passing the bills. An order has already been made for a night session Tuesday for the consideration of bills to which there are no objections.

The probabilities include night sessions every might after Tuesday, continuing virtually through the nights of Saturday and Sunday and also a session next Sunday during the day. These, it is believed, will be held to dispose of the appropriation bills, there being many provisions in those remaining to be considered which may lead to prolonged debate. There is also a probability of debate over the next report of the conference committee on the diplomatic bill, involving the appropriation for the Hawaiian cable.

There is not much in the legislative will to tend to debate, but the other three bills. while it is understood that there will

To the Diplomatic and Consular, the Senate has added amendanother bond issue. To the Diplomatic and Consular the Senate has added amends for the Hawiian ratios. If these provisions prevail despite the protest of the House, it is thought that President Cleveland may veto them. The Dommittee on Pacific Railroads is pressing for an opportunity to secure a vote on the Funding Bill, as amended, and the Committee on Public Buildings is equally insistent upon its demand to secure a provision for a printing house site, which has been hanging fire for several years. It is probable that the Committee on Rules will give both time during the coming week in case opportunity offers. As a whole the week promises to be both interesting and exciting.

The extension was made purely in the interest of taxpayers, who, otherwise through no fault of their own, might be subject to a fine for non-compliance with the law.

The Howgate trial has been unusual in many ways. Fourteen years ago important frauds affecting large sums of money were discovered in the Signal Service accounts and Howgate was charged with having committed them. He was arrested, but by a ruse escaped from his guards and for thirteen years remeined in New York city. Although a reward of $5000 was offered for his capture he was not arrested un'il last fall. At the beginning of the trial there was a hot legal battle in regard to the validity of the indictments on which it was proposed to try Howgate. They were finally sustained and the case tried on its merits. The jury found that the case was not barred by the statute of limitations, but held that Howgate was not guilty of the particular offenses charged. After the verdict was reached Howgate was taken back to await trial on the seven indictments still remaining against him. The negro was seen by the Louiswille Evening Post's reporter just before he passed away, and confessed to having committed five murders. Two of them were in Alabama, twe in Tennessee and one in Georgia. He said that three of his victims were white women. He also said that one man had been tried, convicted and hanged for one of his fiendish acts. The man was not guilty and was convicted on purely circumstantial evidence. He would not tell the exact towns or localities where he had committed these crimes.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—The Brooklyn Eagle says that the New York Sun on Friday contained an editorial article on the Associated Press. It vigorously praised the United Press. The Associated Press does not belong to the Sun. Its zeal for its own organization is natural. Its sorrow or its engar, or both, at what it regards as the bankruptcy and mismanagement, the misfortunes and the sins of the rival organization may, perhaps, be due to genuine benevolence and honest sympathy. The Eagle has belonged to the United Press, and belongs now to the Associated Press, and belongs now to the Associated Press. There was an old Quaker, who, on his deathbed, said: "My son, honesty is the best polley. I know because I have tried both."

The Eagle has tried both associations. It tikes the Associated Press, with other members of the Associated Press, the Eagle is satisfied with the management, its directors and its business conditions. The Eagle was not satisfied with the experience with the United Press, and withdrew from it. The declarations in the Sun have attracted the attention of F. B. Noyes of the Washington Star, since some of them directly dealt with him. He announces his attention at once to force a judicial test of the Sun's accusations against him, on the line and in the light of the actual facts in the case.

The Eagle's experience with Mr. Noyes has been such as to indicate that he is a thoroughly honest director, as well as an excellent, kindly and friendly man.

THE SUN FRANTIC.

What the Baltimore American Says

BALTIMORE (Md.) Feb. 24.—The American says that while professing to advocate the claims of the United Press, to which it belongs, the New York Sun went out of its way to make a most undignified and wicked assault upon the personal character of F. B. Noyes, the energetic, capable and popular manager of the Washington Evening Star. The Associated Press, of which Mr. Noyes is one of the directors, and which also furnishes the telegraphic news to the readers of the American, has so completely distanced its opposition that the Sun, which is the most prominent member of that opposition, has grown frantic, and its editor has forgotten his dignity. He is beating against the cir, however, in his rage and made a colossal mistake in choosing for his target a man who stands so high in the newspaper fraternity and in the esteem of the community in which he lives. A man of sterling integrity, as well as of ability. Mr. Noyes has no occasion to institute proceedings against the Sun to vindicate his character. The suit which he declares it is his purpose to bring, however, may have the effect of deterring the Sun trom a repetition of its reckless utterances.

It was plainly evident from his conversation that he had no kindly feeling toward his coming antagonist, as they have had a couple of unfriendly meetings in the past. Among other things Frasier said he "knew he was going against a good man," and that is just what what he wanted. He knew his oppopent's entire record, what he had done, and what he can do; and he had backing for any amount from $250 to $1000. He prefers not to have his record published, saying that people could judge for themselves, after the contest, which was the better man. Bogan, he said, leid much stress upon his fights with Dal Hawkins, whom he had endeavored to meet a number of times, only to be evaded in every instance. He had had twelve fights, and boxed all over the United States, Australis, and the Hawaiian Islands, and in every instance has been handleapped in weight, from five to thirty-five pounds. If he wins this contest Frasier expects to get a good match in the East, but should he lose he will give up the business and go back to his trade.

Frasier has fought an eleven-round draw with Thompson, George Dixon's sparring partner, and later defeated him in twenty-two rounds. One of his best victories was over a heavy-weight in Nevada, who was to stop him in six rounds, but was put to sleep in the fourth round. He will probably enter the ring a week from Wednesday evening, at about 128 pounds.

A visit was also made to Bogan's quarters, but Frasier's opponent was not there. It was learned, however, that he is in the beet of shape, working hard, and feels confident of winning.

AN IMPORTANT MEETING.

In an editorial upon the calling of the convention of delegates from the various fair districts and trotting associations, for the purpose of fixing dates and arranging programmes for the coming campaign, which will be held in San Francisco on March 5 next, the Breeder and Sportsman says in its last issue:

"The importance of the meeting to be held in this city, March 5, cannot be too forelby impressed upon the minds of every horse-breeder, horse-owner and director of every agricultural district in California. Never has there been such urgent necessity for a meeting, at which vital and important measures relating to the light-harmess horses and race meetings in this State are to be presented.

"The action of the Assembly in cutting

"The action of the Assembly in cutting off all appropriations to the State and district fairs has created much indignation among all classes who have the interests of our farmers, breeders and manufacturers uppermost in their minds. The great losses to be sustained by the fair associations that own fair grounds and improvements are manifest, and from Shasta to San Diego, from the coast counties to laid scheme on the part of some politicians to make capital out of it, is the only valid reason that can be given. We have all heard of 'cinch' bills, but never realized what they meant until the bill to cut off these appropriations was introduced. While every one knows that the same lot of useless commissions and wasteful extravagances which made preceding Legislatures disgraceful are carried on with the same old boldness, no steps were taken to lop off the dead branches or dig down to the roots of the rotten trunk, but the ax was used to remove the thrifty fruit-bearing trees which have grown and flourished every year, rieding bounteous returns for the little time and money expended on them

"There are many important measures regarding these and other grievances which will receive the attention of those meeting in this office March 5, and as this will be the last exportantly for united action a full attendance is expected. Everybody be there. Let us see the largest assemblage of enthusiastic representative men ever assembled for such a purpose on this Coast."

OLD-TIME SALARIES.

OLD-TIME SALARIES.

President von der Ahe has prepared, a table which will be of interest to baseball cranks of the latter days, inasmuch as it shows the salaries received per month by old-time favorites. It also serves to recall the names of players well migh of wholly forgotten by cranks of the last few seasons, says the St. Louis Republic. Comisky, who this year will manage the St. Paul team, came to the Browns in 1882 at a salary of $75 per month. He immediately established himself as a favorite, and the following season received $174.44 each month during the playing season. In 1884 his salary was increased more than $100 a month. When he went to Cincinnati he was getting $232.33 a month from President von der Ahe, and went to Brush at an increase over that. He was getting at that time what was considered one of the largest, if not the largest, amounts off money for playing ball of any one player on the diamond. There is a strong probability that such large amounts will never again be paid ball players. The limit in league salaries is now $2400, though this rule has been evaded in several instances, notably with Rusie and Meekin of New York, by giving motey as ā bonus for extra work in the box.

Arile Latham, who is still in big jeague harness, though he saw his best days in the old American association, joined the Browns in 1832, receiving $100 a month. He gradually rose, and was eventually drawing $333.33, and "Brudder Bill Gleason was beside him al' the time, increasing the same amount each year as Arile. Davis, who played second base, started in at $75 a month, and his highest salary while on the Browns was at $250 a month. Tom Deasley's salary ranged from $257 a month to $350, and Hugh Nicol earned all the way from $100 to $300 a month. George whole on the Browns was at $250 a month. Jack Gleason $157; Ed Cuthbert, $225. Tony Mullane, in 1884, was getting $300, and Tom Dolan, who was injured seriously last spring by electricity, was getting $2

The press of the country is undoubtedly the proper channel through which the inaugurating of such a league should be undertaken. GLENALVIN WINS.

CLENALVIN WINS.

An important meeting of the directors of the Western Baseball League was held at the Tremont House at Chicago recently to consider the case of Robert Glenalvin vs. G. A. Vanderbeck, manager last season of the Detroit baseball club. Glenalvin claims that he was required to sign two sets of contracts and asserts that the club still owes him $12. One of the contracts called for $125$, the Western League limit. The salary due on this contract was paid, but the other contract, which swelled his salary to $2000, was not lived up to. When Vanderbeck purchased Glenalvin's release he was under contract to the Chicago club for $2000, and signed with Detroit for that amount. The case has been before the board for several weeks. Director Killiles of Milwaukee said that the board, after hearing the statements of both men, unanimously decided that Vanderbeck would have to pay Glenalvin the amount of his claim, $312, by March, or forfelt his franchise. The evidence against Vanderbeck was conclusive.

Those present at the meeting were Ban B. Johnson of Cincinnati, president, and Directors George E. Ellis of Grand Rapids, and M. R. Killilea of Milwaukee. G. A. Vanderbeck was also present, as were Robert H. Leadley and Benjamin F. Gurney of Detroit.

INTERNATIONAL ATHLETICS.

H. K. Holman, the honorary secretary of the London Athletic Club, has sent a response to the letter written to him on the 15th of January by John C. Guilck, secretary of the New York Athletic Club, in regard to the contemplated contest in New York between representatives of the New York and the London athletic clubs. Mr. Holman's letter agrees upon September 21, the date fixed by the New York Athletic Club, for the contest. He agrees that a 220-yard flat race be added to the programme, and proposes to leave the long race, distance three miles, out. Mr. Holman's letter says that the team that will be sent to America well probably be composed of C. A. Bradley, C. B. Fry, G. Shaw, A. R. Downer, W. J. M. Barry, E. C. Bredin, W. E. Lutlens, F. S. Horan, A. R. Williams and A. Ovenden. Mr. Holman says further that Bradley had just joined the London Athletic Club, and that Fry and Downer were also recently elected members. He says: "The whole team will thus be composed of fully-qualified paying members of the club, but I think that it is only night that you should be in possession of all the facts." In regard to the question of the expenses of the contest, Mr. Holman accepts the offer of the New York Athletic Club to pay the expenses of a team and substitutes, not to exceed fifteen in number, from London to New York and return.

The programme, as now arranged, will ber, from Louden warranged, will consist of the following events: One hundred, 220, 440 and 880-yard runs, one-mile run, 120-yard hurdle race, running high and running broad jumps, putting sixteen-pound shot, and throwing sixteen-pound hammer.

On the day of the reception of the Queen they will be massed in Los Angeles by special limited trains, and preparations are already made for a brilliant escort upon their arrival. The egoort will embrace all the high dignitaries of Her Majesty's government, who will be clothed not only in their right mind, but in costumes of exceeding richness, befitting such a vare ceremonial occasion. Miles of red tape will be in use, and when the brilliant cavalcade enters the presence the assambled subjects will witness an imposing court scene. 'The officers of the government will be reinforced by a formidable military escort, and the function will be in all respects an auspicious one, at which none may cavil.

The Queen's advisory board is nevertheless much perturbed over the formidable days of choosing the medias of honor.

INTERESTING MEETINGS. There is one meeting which from the present time until the fiesta will be of considerable general interest. This is the Saturday night meeting at headquarters, when the advisory board and committeewhen the advisory board and committee men meet for a general pow-wow or council. Everybody is entitled to join in the discussions, and there is a general round-up of the progress which has been made during the week. These meetings develop much joility, and enthusiasm, and are becoming more largely attended every week. Members of the committee armaking it a point to show up at these meetings, as they are informal, and for discussion of plans more than action although the advisory board sits to transact any necessary business.

The plan of the Construction Committee for seats at Westlake Park for the review of the beautiful floral parade is a very thorough one. It contemplates building for the future. The seats are to be so built that they can be taken apart and be used in future years. Although the first cost will be considerable, the committee was of the opinion that by a moderate charge for use the expense could be nearly recovered the first year. Some time this week the Artistic Committee will go out to Westlake with Chairman Dockweller to consult about the best disposition of the seats, both for the spectator and from an artistic standpoint. O. Ccilins, Esq., has just issued its first circular letter, setting forth its work during the past two years, and reviewing its brief history.

The letter states that the society was instituted in this city on May 8, 1893, and was incorporated under the laws of the State even days later, its incorporators being James Monroe Allen, Lieut. Charles Lee Coll'ns, U.S.A.; Edward-Themas Harden, and John Miner Carey Marble.

The letter gods on at some length to state that no perison has been admitted to membership of the society whose proof of the services of his ancestors has not been verified from the public records, either at Washington or in the office of the adjutant-general of the State from which the ancestors originated.

The organization is national in its scope, consisting of a confederation of the several State cocleties, and this feature has been constantly kept in mind. The home society is not a Los Angeles club, but a California corporation, composing an integral part of the general society. Its records are in a gratifying state of perfection.

spondence.) A brave San Diego citizen has just received national recognition for his bravery in the form of a medal of honor from Congress. This medal is similar in its meaning to the Victoria cross of England, awarded for acts of bravery, and the Legion of Honor medal of France and the Legion of Honor medal of France. The brave man is Judge Moses A. Luce, one of the feading lawyers of California. In 1864 Judge Luce was sergeant of Co. E. Fourth Michigan Volunteers, facing the enemy at Laurel Hill, Va. He rescued a comrade under fire. Asher B. La Fleur was the wounded comrade. He tells the story of the gallant rescue as follows:

"On May 10, 1864, I was a member of the Fourth Michigan Infantry, numbering about 100 men, when that regiment, with story of the gallant rescue as follows:

"On May 10, 1864, I was a member of the Fourth Michigan Infantry, numbering about 100 men, when that regiment, with the Twenty-second Massachusetts Infantry, was designated to lead an assault on a part of the line of earthworks held by the Confederate army opposite the Fifth Army Corps near Laurel Hill at Spottsylvania. A heavy fog prevailed while the ines were being formed. The men in the front line were told to make the assault, and that they would be supported by the whole division. The muskets were ordered unloaded and bayonets fixed. The fog began breaking away and the order came to charge, which was responded to with a dash for the rebelibreastworks in our immediate front. Their strong picket line was broken through without a stop, and the assaulting column received shell and canister without a break. But just as our line reached the works it received a voiley of musketry from the rebell line which effectually repulsed the assault, driving the survivors back to our line. Ours was a forforn hope. Our position was unsustained by any portion of the division. During the assault a ball broke the bores of my leg and I fell upon the field, and was left there when our line fell back to their earchworks. I kept calling for help, and was sying in an exposed position subject to the fire of both lines when Sergt. M. A. Luce came to me, and, picking me up, carried me upon his back to a small log barn where he succeeded in stopping the blood from my wound and saved me from bleeding to death on the field. Sergt. Luce at the time of the charge had command of Co. E, of the Fourth Michigan, which had only seven men in the charge, and of these five were killed or wounded. He received a slight wound over the eye, and the stock of his musket was broken in the charge. He had heard me while in the rifle pit, and, dropping his musket, had started back over that terrible field to help a fellow college student, without orders and with the most imminent peril to himself by reason of the heavy firing with which the rebels were following up their success in repulsing our line, and of the return fire from our men after they had reached their earthworks, which was so hot that no officer would have ordered a man forward to save another fallen on such a field. I have always deemed it the most courteous and self-sacrificing act which I ever knew to be performed upon a field of battle during the war; and that it evinced a bravery and heroism which was eminently deserving of public recognition, and worthy to be enrolled in the public records as one of the most heroic acts of the late war."

He held to the belief that he was elected President of the whole country as it existed when he was elected, and should sethat the laws of tho Union were faithfully executed in all the States. This was the pivotal idea of the war for the preservation of the Union. It was peculiarly and emphatically Lincoin's idea, and how well it prevailed let history say.

Wit hthe lapse of time has come to us a clearer vision and broader views, and we have come to recognize him as one of the earth's great ones, whose laurel-laden brow, made for the merning, dropped not in the night.

It would be fitting to make this his natal day a national holiday, for all men have come to know that to Abraham Lincoin was it chiefly due that a government of the people, by the people, and for people did not perish from the earth.

This suggestion, coming thirty years after the war, and from Virginia, that was wasted and worn in that struggle, might well be heeded in these its closing hours by a Democratic Coagress, that, by this single graceful act, would render its record forever memorable for the doing of one thing that the whole world would approve.

AT THE CHURCHES

A Methodist Minister on Unitarianism.

Interesting Pastoral Letter Issued by the Rector of St. Johns.

Evangelists McLane and Pratt Hold Several Services—Dr. Chapman Discusses Home Missions. Sunday's Sermons.

Rev. F. M. Larkin preached yesterday Nev. F. M. Larkin preached yesterday morning on the subject, "What is Unitarianism?" taking as a text Timothy if, 6: "And oppositions of science, falsely so-called, which some professing have erred concerning the faith."

Unitarianism is a doctrine of denials. The Unitarians deny always some of the essential doctrines of the faith; the divinity of the Grant was Christ; the tright of the Grant essential doctrines of the faith; the divin-ity of Jesus Christ; the trinity of the God-head, and the doctrine of sin.

As their view is that sin is simply missing the mark by following a bad

Ms their view is that sin is simply missing the mark by following a bad example, this teaching necessarily dispenses with the need of a Savior.

All Unitarians, whatever the differences in their views upon other subjects, unite in denying the divinity of Christ.

American Unitarianism is a sort of non-descript heresy, swinging from one extreme to the other, and best defined as containing "a little of everything religious, and not much of anything." It was started in America about a century ago, as a protest against the old school, Calvinism, and, at one time, had nearly absorbed the whole of New England, but the result of this century of progress shows an increase of only fifty thousand communicants to the Unitarians, while the orthodox churches show an increase of from two to nearly five millions.

There may be Christians among Unitarians, but Unitarianism is not Christianity. Therefore hold fast to the faith and do not by professing these failse doctrines, or concerning the faith.

SIMPSON TABERNACLE.

SIMPSON TABERNACLE.

The Sunday morning service at Simpson Tabernacle was very well attended son Tabernacle was very well attended.
Rev. C. C. McLean chose his text from Peter, i, 1, 2. The attendion of his hearers was especially called to the suffering of Christ in giving salvation to the world. His divinity is not, perhaps, brought home to us as clearly in the simple record of His life here on earth as it is in the thought of the supernal glory fail aside by the Son of God for the sake of faillen, suffering humanity. There is nothing in God's word to teach that Christ came to this world to buy back the slaves of sin from the rule of Setan. God permitted his only-begotten Son to take upon Himself the form of flesh, and so to suffer upon this earth that all might accept, if they would, His redemption. All His sufferings, the buffetings He received throughout His ministry, the sorrows of which the agency upon the cross was but a dimax, are nothing unless considered as the great atonement made for the human race.

He was rich; for our sakes He became prov. We cannot comprehend the silvry. Rev. C. C. McLean chose his text from

He was rich; for our sakes He became poor. We cannot comprehend the glory He laid aside, nor the extent of the sacrifice He made until we see Him as He is, and are made like Him.

He was rejected by rich and poor alike, even by those of his own household; and He bore the sins of all humanity upon His own great soul. All the prophecies center in the Messiah; the Christ who suffered even unto death to redeem His people. He trod the wine-press alone for the even unto death to redeem His people He trod the wine-press alone for the sake of will the world, and the cross bordown the Son of God to earth for you sins and for mine. His sympethy is wit us today, tender and merciful as when Higherly excused the disciples in the garder who could not watch with Him one hou and in our desperate struggles and to frequent failures we are yet consoled whe we remember His doving words: "The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak."

weak."

The sufferings of Jesus Christ we will some day understand. They mean His eternal glory, which all His followers may share. God grant they may walk in His ways all the days of their lives.

A PASTORAL LETTER.

The rector of St. John's Episcopal Church on West Adams street has issued a Church on West Adams street has issued a card of special services to be held during the approaching Lenten season. There will be services every Wednesday and Thursday mornings, at 10 o'clock, with special meditation and litany every Friday at 4 p.m. On Thursday mornings, in Lent sermons will be preached in St. John's by the various city rectors in rotation, and the Holy Eucharist will be celebrated. Next Wednesday being Ash Wednesday, there will be services at 8 a.m., 10:30 a.m., and 7:30 p.m. There will also be union services in the various Episcopal churches on the Wednesday evenings in Lent, the series commencing in St. John's Church and going successively to Christ's Church.

services in the various Episcopal churches on the Wednesday evenings in Lent, the series commencing in St. John's Church and going successively to Christ's Church, St. Paul's, Church of the Epiphany, and Church of the Ascension.

This card also contains a pastoral letter from the rector of St. John's to his parishioners, solemnly exhorting them to main tain a proper observance of Lent. The comparative indifference of many church people to the real meaning and importance of a strict observance of this holy fait and their refusal to withdraw from secular pleasures during this season, tend to make the requirements of the church appear hollow and absurd in the eyes of the world, as well as being gravely detrimental to their own spiritual welfare. No strict laws regarding meat and drink are laid down by the church, but she does require "such a measure of abstinence as is more especially suited to extraordinary acts and exercises of devotion," and expects that worldly amusements shall be dispensed with, during this season, by all of her communicants. The letter closes thus: "Above all, let our Lenten devotion be earnest, serious and continuous. Beware of a spasmodic Lent. Do not undertake to attend every service held in the church during Lent, for there is hardly one in the whole parish who can do that. But select certain days for service, certain hours for prayer and meditation, and lethouring interfere with these. If you cannot formulate some plan for yourself, come to me, and I shall endeavor to assist you. Read the word of God more carefully and below to the privacy of your secret devotion. And so this Lent will enrich and bless your spiritual growth, and you will be so much the better for having made its observance a memorable event in your life."

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH. Yesterday was a busy day at the First Christian Church. Evangelist McLane preached three times to large and enthusiastic audiences. The revival services are growing in power and influence and many people are being deeply impressed by the earnest preaching of the eloquent evangelist. At the forehoon service the subject of the sermon was, "Christian Union." This is the most popular idea in the religious world of today. It is upon more lips and in more pulpits than any other subject. In many sections of our country there is a great practical necessity for it, for all the churches cannot support different organizations. Then the churches are learning that the influence of denominationalism is against the advancement of true Christianity. The power of denominational in greatly militates against Christian progress in foreign fields. The great question then before the religious world is to find a platform upon which Christian union is possible. It can only be done by going beyond and behind denominational origins, and accepting the religion of Christs as preached and practiced by the church in the days of the aporties. This would necessitate the repudiation of all denominational names and the acceptance of the name Christians for followers of Christ and the church of Christ for the organization of these followers. There could only be the Bible as a standard of farth and practice and all creeds would have to be repudiated, set aside as having no ecclesiastical authority. The ordinances of the church, the Lord's supper and baptism, would have to be restored to their original place in purpose, design and method of observance.

The church thus organized and all sectarianism destroyed would be a mighty fector in the rapid evangelization of the world.

In the afternoon the evangelization prached

In the afternoon the evangelisation of the loss a crowded house upon the 'Dangers of Ramanism.'' In the evening he preached upon "Sowing and Reaping." There were several accessions during the day. The power and influence of the meeting is growing wider and many are considering the interests of their, souls. Tonight the subject of the sermon is the "Holy Spirit." Prof. Colger leads the music, which is very good.

Dr. C.C. McLean of the Simpson Taber-nacle spoke to a large audience yesterday afternoon at the Young Men's Christian As-sociation. The subject of the address was taken from the life of Christ, and was taken from the life of Christ, and was intensely interesting, and the lessons drawn from the life of the Master very simple and helpful. Judge McNutt of Indiana, who delivered a lecture in the city on "The Trial of Jesus from a Legal Standpoint," under the auspices of the association, will speak next Sunday on the subject, "Moral Architecture." Those who heard Judge McNutt in his lecture will be glad of the opportunity of again hearing him.

EAST LOS ANGELES BAPTIST CHURCH Sunday morning Rev. George E. Dye gave a sketch of the career of Rev. A. J. sunday morning Rev. George E. Dye save a sketch of the career of Rev. A. J. Gordon, D.D., who recently died in Boston. Mr. Gordon built up a national reputation as the pastor of the Clarendon-street Baptist Church. He was a preacher of rare attainments. He was president of the A.B.F.M.S. and editor of the Missionary Review of the World and the Watchword, a religious monthly. He was associated for years with Moody in the Northfield work, and during the World's Fair at Chicago was one of the principal speakers. As an author he was well known on both sides of the Atlantic. In 1889 he founded the Boston Missionary Training School, designed for men and women, who desired to engage in mission work, but who from age or any other reason could not pursue an academic or collegiate course. The tuition was free. He was much loved by all denominations, and while much sought after, he never had time to make money. Peace to his ashes!

A DOUBLE CHRISTENING. More than usual interest was manifes by the large congregation in the services at the First Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday morning, for immediately after at the First methodist Episcopal Church yesterday morning, for immediately after the annual home missionary sermon by Bishop Goodsell, he baptized the infant daughters of the pastor, Dr. J. W. Campbell, and the Sunday-school superintendent, Dr. A. W. Brodbeck. The water used in the baptismal services was from the River Jordan, the offering of Mrs. F. M. Campbell, and widow of the founder of the De Paun University of Indiana. The altar had been beautifully decorated with pure white marguerites and illies and garlands of smilax. The little ones were christened Mildred Ray Campbell and Mary Brodbeck respectively. The Ladies' Aid Society presented little Mildred with a handsome christening gift, and baby Mary received a silver cup from the primary teachers of the Sunday-school, of which department Mrs. Brodbeck is superintendent. Other beautiful gifts were also received.

PENIEL HALL. Dr. P. F. Bresee preached yesterday norning to a large audience, the second of his Sunday morning discourses on "Great Gifts." His text was from I Cor-inthians xiii, 31: "But covet earnestly the

The great gift is faith, which must be preceded by knowledge; as without knowledge as without knowledge there can be no faith. It is the John the Baptist that goes before, casting up the highway for the more royal feet of fath to tread.

There is nothing in our religion around which so much fog is gathered as that something we call faith, but it is regarded in the scriptures as the most important of all the factors which go to form character or shape destiny. It may enable us to reach things higher than itself, but without it they could not be reached. Without it, it is impossible to be reached. Without it, it is impossible to the foundation stone of the church; the key to the divine mysteries, and the passport to the skies.

If it is so vital, we may well ask what it is; the great question answered by Paul: "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

EMANUEL PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Dr. Chapman preached yesterday to a large audience upon the subject of home missions. His text was "He that watereth is himself watered," and he drew several apt illustrations from the beneficial effects of water upon dry and barren lands. His sermon was a touching and eloquent appeal for aid to the little ones who suffer in our midst, and was enriched by many vivid and pathetic illustrations of the need these have of our help.

Dr. Chapman will deliver a course of lectures upon "The Tabernacle" this week.

FIRST SPIRITUAL SOCIETY.

The exercises at Music Hall were well attended yesterday both afternoon and evening.

Dr. G. W. Carpender, late of Chicago, tectured upon "The Evidences of Continual Life" in the afternoon; and "What and Where is the Soul?" in the evening. Both addresses were simple and eloquent, and both themes were very well handied. The executive board will probably present this speaker to the community many times in the near future, when kindred subjects of psychic science will be taken up.

CARLYLE.

RECOLLECTIONS OF THE RARE PHILOSOPHER.

Carlyle's Interview with Queen Victoria—How the Old Rough and Ready Behaved Before Boyalty.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 22.—(To the Editor of The Times.) I am sure that your readers will be interested in a letter of Carlyle's, which has been withheld from publication until this month, when it appeared on the 2d exclusively in the Lon-don Athenaeum. It was written by Car-lyle to his sister Jean, with that freedom with which a brother is wont to address a sister, without having either the printer or posterity in view. His sister Jean was the wife of the late Dr. Aitken of Dumfries, Scotland. Doubtless this letter has been withheld from publication because of the mention of several persons besides himself, wherein and about whom he used, pretty plain language. Carlyle was always in the habit of "calling a spade a spade."

The place of interview was the restdence of the Dean of Wesminster (then Stanley,) adjacent to and indeed built into that historic minster where the great of England lie in their marble urns. It must have been a remarkable meeting with "Our Gracious Lady, Queen Victoria," for there were besides the sturdy, eccentric and gifted Carlyle, Sir Charles Lyell, the great scientist; Robert Browning, the fashionable poet of the present, but who, when time rolls on and fashion rolls away, has intrinsic poetle masculine strength that will give him a name down "the tide of time;" Grote, the historian of Greece, and the ever genial, the scholarly, broad and popular Dean Stanley (the dear, pure little boy in "Tom Brown at Rugby.") Of the ladies mentioned (in addition to Lady Athel and the Princess Louise) Lady Augusta Stanley and Lady Lyell are most agreeably remembered by a few in America, and more well known in England for their true gentility, and for their no mean knowledge of letters. Of Mrs. Grote, who has ever heard of her outside of England! I am afraid that Carlyle's description of her was what hindered this letter from seeing the light ere this. All the persons present at the little gathering, where the Queen wished to see the "lords of thought," are now in their graves, except the noble "womanly woman" who seeing the light ere this. Long may she live! Those few men, though well connected, had no long pedigress

English bishop, and whose grandfather. Sir John Thomas Stanley, was the sixth Baronet of Alderley, Chesline. It was a notable gathering, and argues well for Queen Victoria that she laid aside the ceremonies, red-tapeism and the gentlemen-in-livery business of the English court to come to a subject's private residence to meet men distinguished for their minds alone. But now for the letter, which is entirely Carlylesque.

CHELSEA, March 11 1869.

Dear Jean: Mary, I find, has inserted for you a small letter along with the one that belongs to the doctor. I have nothing of my own in the form of news beyond what that "child of, Nature" will have said.

All busy here—March winds "snell" as possible (one's new cape not useless) but not unwholesome; fine, dry and cold, instead of the wet, tepid puddle we have long had, and, in consequence, sleep a little better than then.

But my present business is to tell you exclusively of the Queen's interview, for which great object I have only a few minutes. Swift, then, if my poor hand but would! "Interview" took place this day agone a week. Nearly a week before that the Dean and Deaness (who is called Lady Augusta Stanley, once Bruce, an active, hard and busy woman) frove up here, and, in a solemnly-mysterious, half-quiz-tical manner, invited me for Thursday, 4th, at 5 p.m.—"must come; a very high, indeed highest, personage has long been desirous," etc., etc. I saw well enough it was the Queen's incognita, and briefly agreed to come. "Half-past four, come you," and then went their ways.

Walking up at the set time I was ushered into that long drawing-room in their monastic edifice. I found no Stanley yet there; only at the further end a tail, old year-pole (?) of a Mrs. Crote, the most wooden-headed woman I know in London, or the world, who thinks herself very clever, etc., and the eight of whom led me to expect Mr. too, and perhaps others, as accordingly in a few minutes fell out. Grote and wife, Sir Charles Lyell and ditto, Browning and myself; that I saw to be our party. "Bet

Browning and myself; that I saw to be our party. "Better than nothing," thought I, "these will take off the edge of the thing, if edge there be"—which it hadn't, nor threatened to have.

The Stanleys and we were all fin a flow of talk, and some flunkeys had done setting coffee pots and tea cups of a sublime pattern, when Her Majesty, punctual to the minute, gilded in, escorted by her dame-in-waiting (a Duchess Dowager of Athol) and by the Princess Louise, decidedly a very pretty young lady, and dever, too, as I found out in talking to her afterward. The Queen came softly forward, a kindly little smile on her face, gently shook hands with all the three women, gently saknowledged with a nod the stilent bows of us male monsters, and directly in her presence every one was at ease again. She is a comely little lady, with a pair of kind, clear, and intelligent gray eyes; still looks almost young (in spite of one broad wrinkle which shows on each cheek occastonally) is still plump; has a fine, low voice, soft; indeed, her whole manner is metodiously rerfect. It is impossible to amagine a politer little woman; nothing the least imperious; all gentle, all sincere, looking unembarrassing—rather attractive even; makes you feel, too (if you have any sense in you) that she is Queen.

After a little word to each of us—to me it was, "Sorry you did not see my daughter" (Princess of Prussia) or "all sorry," perhaps so; which ied us to Potsdam, Berlin, etc., for an instant or two. To Sir Charles Lyell I heard her say "gold in Sutherland"—but quickly and delicately cut him short in responding. To Browning, "Are you writing anything?" (who has just been publishing the absurdest things?) To Grote I did not hear what she said, but it was touch and go with everybody—Majesty visibly without interest, or nearly so, of her own.

After this, coffee (very black and muddy) was handed round, Queen and three "Aristotle, now that I have done with Plate," (but only for a minimum of time.) Majesty herself (and I 'hink apropos of some (justion about my shaky hand) said something about her own difficulty in writing to dictation, which brought forward Lady Lyell and husban!, mutually used to the operation; after which, talk becoming quite trivial. Majesty gracefully retired with Lady Augusta, and, in ten minutes more, returned, to receive our farewell bows, which, too, she did very prettily, and sailed out as if moving on skates, and bending her head to us with a smile.

By the underground railway I was home before 7, and out of the adventure, with only a headache of little moment.

Froude tells me there are foolish myths about the poor business, especially about my share of it; but this is the real truth, worth to me in strictest truth all but nothing, in the myths less than nothing.

In some respects the author of this volume is an original thinker, although many of the ideas set forth by him have many of the ideas set forth by him have already been broached by modern science. His definition of electricity, that strange, subtle agent of which we know so little, is that it may correctly be called a transformation of energy, and is a constant series of magnetic inductions between centers of force, or "atoms," and is thus analogous to spiritual influence, or to "thought transference." The sum of the author's reasoning is that "spirit is the universal, omnipotent, substantial medium of all the phenomena of the universal, omnipotent, substantial medium of all the phenomena of the universe and the underlying substance of all matter, constantly sustained in its accidents for the contemplation of created spirits, by the Divine Will in accordance with fixed and permanent laws. All created things that exist are the ideas of God."

It is a book that will create a profound impression upon the mind of every man who reads it.

Poet Lore, which is published in Boston by the Poet Lore Company, has among its many contributions of interest, a paper on "The Religion of Robert Burns," by Walter Walsh. The religion of Burns was not of the theology of John Calvin. "Scotland," says the writer, "recognizes the genuine religiousness, the instructive reverence, the passionate, prophetic intensity which underlay the levity of the poet's manners and the looseness of his morals." The remaining papers, dramas, etc., are well presented.

Demorest's Family Magazine for March is a bright number. Its frontispiece, "Cupid," is a pretty pastel, which will please subscribers. "Sugar Time Among the Maples," by L.E.C., is a finely illustrated article that takes the New England exile back on the swift steed of fancy to the spring woods, where the sap is flowing during the mild days that succeed the frosty nights in March and early April. "Flowers for Cutting" is a helpful paper by Eben E. Rexford. The "Mirror of Fashions" is full and complete. The whole number cannot fall to please its many readers.

The Chap Book for February 15 is at hand, and among its very readable articles we note "The Man Who Dares," by Louise Chandler Moulton; "Transmigration, or the Cat," Eleanor B. Caldwell; "The Land of the Straddle-Bug"—conclusion by Hamilin Garland. The tiny publication is published by Stone & Kimball, Chleago, and is always welcomed.

Harper's Bazar comes to its readers this week with a large number of illustrations of pretty spring styles, fresh home suggestions and stories for the lovers of fiction.

Extremes of Temperature.

"The lowest temperature ever recorded on the earth was taken at Werchojansk, in the interior of Siberia, January 15, 1885. It was 90 deg, and a fraction below zero. There the earth is frozen to a depth of about 100 feet, frozen to a depth of about 100 feet, frozen to a depth of about 100 feet, and in the warmest season it never thaws. The highest temperature recorded is 124 deg, and a fraction, taken in Algeria, July 17, 1879. The lowest temperature on record in the United States is 64 deg, below zero, at Tobacco Garden, N. D. Greely, the Arctic explorer, has probably experienced a wider range of temperature than any other living man. He records 86 deg, below zero at Fort Conger, in Lady Franklin Bay. On another occasion, in the Maricopa Desert of Arizona, his thermometer in the shade ran up to 114 above. A lucifer match dropped upon the burring sands of the Sahara will catch fire. It is very difficult even with the fineet thermometers to get accurate records of extreme temperatures, and on that account such observations, in general, are to be regarded as only approximately correct.

"When the heavens are covered with Extremes of Temperature.

that account such obsivations, in general, are to be regarded as only approximately correct.

"When the heavens are covered with clouds there is little or no danger of killing frosts, because the blanket of vapor hanging overhead prevents the heat from radiating from the earth, and thus serves to keep the plants warm. It is when the sky is clear that radiation takes place rapidly, and then, if the thermometer falls, it is time for the farmer to look out. Quite commently, nowadays, truck farmers make use of artificial clouds to protect the growing vegetables. It a night promises to be clear and cold, they place in various parts of the field heaps of dampened straw or chips, to which they set fire. This makes a great smoke, which spreads over the field and serves the same purpose as real clouds. If there is a bresse, a line of straw is laid on the windward side of the field. In the same way the vineyardists of France frequently save their grapes. The enlightened agriculturist has a simple instrument called a 'psychrometer,' consisting of two thermometers, which cost has 22. By messa of this, together with a printed table furnished for the purpose, he ascertains the 'dew-point.' The dew-point is the temperature at which dew forms. The observation is made at 9 o'clock on the evening when frost threatens. If the thermometer is 44 deg. and the dew point 24 deg., there is every chance of frost, and it is time to arrange for making artificial clouds."

"DOG-GONE IT I"

A SUNDAY SCREED ON A YEL-LOW CANINE,

Together with Observations on the Appetite of the Same for "The Times" — A Heroic Carrier.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 24, 1895.—(To The Times; this morning had in it a message, which evidently found its way into the paper after the jumbo press had completed it work. The message says:

"I threw this paper on your walk, and before I got out of sight a large yellow (sic) carried it to your neighbor's yard. I went after him and brought it beck. Please have that dog prosecuted for larceny and so forth.

CARRIER."

My first feelings of gratitude to the carrier for his kindness were so overwhelming that no other sentiment could find place. As the hours recede, while I am not less grateful, it is evident that there is another and, perhaps, more enduring impression left upon my imagination. That impression is one of admiration for the heroic action of the carrier in rescuing my lost paper, instead of centering his attention upon the other undelivered papers, "the ninety and nine that safely lay" in the shelter of his gig. I think I see him now, painfully untwisting his ramped legs from the place where for two hours they had been surrounding the ever-diminishing pile of liberty-lamps. Before his eyes loom the enormous proportions of the "large yellow sic." who lies flat on his belly in my neighbor's yard, his fore-paws on the doomed newspaper, his big bushy tail slowly waving definance, and his big dog-eyes and mouth valuly trying to conceal their good-nature under a mask of terrifying severity. More awful yet before the "mind's eye" of the carrier swarm the angry faces of the many subscribers whose tempers will be heated and whose coffee will be cooled, while they stand upon their door-steps and berate the carrier for being so late. Facing all these terrors, losing I know not how much valuable time, the carrier has rescued my paper from destruction. What injuries he may have received from the dog we must infer from his request that the present distinguished editor (long life to him!) shall have passed in his checks, is my ferrent Sunday-morning prayer.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—(To the Editor of The Times:) At the Y. P. S. C. E. county convention held at the Baptist Church in East Los Angeles Friday, one of the strongest addresses was given by J. D. Habbick, a young lawyer of our neigh-J.D. Habbick, a young lawyer of our neighboring temperance city, Pasadena. Mr. Habbick followed Rev. B. E. Howard, who spoke on good citizenship, with an address on social evils which too often embitter home life. He gave an account of one woman now leading a life of shame in this city, who can point back to the simple home of her childhood and to the night when, after the ball. she, with her friend, took supper, including wine. Before the next morning's sunrise she had purchased a railroad ticket and was on her way to Denver, leaving home and parents forever. The first step a glass of wine.

"It is not alone in these haunts of vice," he said, "that the sorrows brought about by intemperance may be seen, but if we should stand before some palatial residences of this city in the early morning hours, we might see an old man helping from a hack his son, for whom he had searched all right, in a beastly state of intoxication."

The evil touches all classes of society. In closing he earnestly urged Christian women to lay aside all over-modesty and extend a helping hand to the fallen.

How to Make Bread.

How to Make Bread.

Use the best flour; have the yeast sweet and fresh. Scald the milk and let cool to be just warm. Put the yeast to soak in a little of the milk. This is a good proportion: One quart of sifted flour, one pint of warm milk, half cake of compressed yeast, one teaspoonful of catt. Make a hollow in the flour, add the sait, milk and yeast. Mix to a firm, smooth dough; then take on molding-board and knead twenty-five minutes. Keep warm while kneeding. Place in earthen bowl, cover with oloth and wrap closely with paper. This will exclude the air. In the morning push the dough down from the sides of the bowl, let rise again, then knead ten minutes lightly, shape into loaves, rise and bake.

The degree of lightness, and the heat in baking are very important matters. A leaf should be nearly double in size; it will feel aerated or light all through. Test the oven. If one cannot bear the hand inside while counting twenty, it is too hot. Experience will teach one just how hot the oven should be. The bread must heat through before it is crustbound. Then increase the heat; bake from forty minutes to an hour. Take out of the pan; leave where the pure air can surround it.

Bread should be kept in an earthen jar with a close-fitting cover. Every other day the jar should be scalded and the pieces of bread carefully looked over.

"At a late hour-Saturday a South avenue car was laboriously climbing the hill beyond finden street, on its way to the terminus at the county buildings, when one of the axles broke. An ocean steamer in mild-atlantic with a broken shaft could not have been as helpless, for there is always the chance of getting a tow, but there was no car in the vicinity, and if there had been a broken axis would have made towing impossible. So the car was there for the night.

"The few passengers took to their feet and by and by the conductor, seeing that his work as the financial representative of the company was over, also sought his homeward way. THE WASTEFULNESS OF PICK-ING UP NAILS.

Readiness for Fire—The Peculiarities of Birds' Tongues-Improve-ment in Gas Generators.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2, 1895.—(Special Correspondence.) It is noted that with all the innovations and improvements made in apparatus for fire extinction, the insurinnovations and imprevements made in apparatus for fire extinction, the insurance companies and insurers still count a good deal on the time-honored fire pail. This device is said to put out more fires than anything else, and to have the great advantage that anybody can handle it promptly and effectively without doing any great damage. A visitor to a factory recently remarks of what is perhaps more common than it should be: "We noticed a hosehouse in the yard, which was alleged to contain a hose-wagon and some fire hose, but, on account of the rush of business and lack of room, there were piled up in front of the hosehouse door several tons of pig fron, which might be useful for some things more than others." The tendency to neglect the fire pail is also a well known phenomenon, and is overcome not only by watchfulness, but in some cases by an arrangement which closes an electric circuit and rings a bell continuously when the pails get light by evaporation of their contents. Another plan is to balance the weight of the water against a strong spring, which will stand the pails upside down in the air unless they are properly loaded.

INNOVATIONS IN UMBRELLAS.

One of the later novelties in umbrella is a form that can be carried in an ordipary gripsack and adjusted to a great variety of needs. For instance it can be hitched to a licycle in six different positions. In general essentials it corresponds to a carriage top. The handles are made in two or three sections and largely of aluminum. So popular has the device become, a large factory now employs several hundred hands turning it out in a great variety. Some years ago an attempt was made by an ingenious American to introduce a neat little umbrella that could be fitted either to the hat or to the shoulders, leaving the Fards entirely free for work. It was expected that it would be welcomed in the troptes and that it might even solve the great problem of rendering white labor possible in competition with black, in tropical regions; while it was coviously just 'he thing to save marching soldiers from sunstroke. But this ingenious invention scmehow did not 'take,' and another fort me thus remains ungarnered. nary gripsack and adjusted to a great

THE PECULIARITIES OF BIRDS TONGUES.

Every naturalist is acquainted with the TONGUES.

Every naturalist is acquainted with the elaborate spring-like mechanism by which the woodpeckers and humming birds are enabled to protrude their tongues with such rapidity for the capture of insect prey. Herr Schonkling-Prevot supplies a quantity of interesting information on the form of the tongue and hyoid apparatus of birds in general. The old idea that the woodpecker transfixes its prey with its sharp-tipped tongue is probably not yet extinct, but Herr Prevot states that the insects are agglutinated to its tongue by the sticky secretion with which its tongue is copiously covered. Although the form of the tongue usually correspondes to the shape of the bill, there are exceptions to this rule, as, for example, in the waders, kinglisher and hoopoe, which, in spite of their long bills, only possess small cartilaginous tongues; in the pelican, indeed, the tongue is dart, or awl-shaped; in others, spatulate, rarely vermiform or tubular. In some birds, such as the owl, which swallow their prey entire, the tongue is broad and serves as a mere shovel. In the hedge sparrow, nuthatch, woodcock and others, the tongue is bidd or trifid at its apex, while in the humming birds the tongue is split into two branches almost at its base, and is used for actually gripping the small insects, on which these resplendent little creatures subsist. In a family of parrots, the tongue is provided at its apex with a brush of some two hundred and flesh devoid of horny barbs or papillae, and is even suspected to possess sense organs of taste. Herr Prevot concludes his concise but interesting paper with some remarks on the influence of the form of tongue in birds on their varying powers of articulation. It is interesting to note that the parrots, the form of whose tongues most closely resembles that of man, are able to imitate his language more nearly than any other birds.

HOW TO DETECT ICEBERGS.

HOW TO DETECT ICEBERGS. The schemes and plans hit upon to assist in detecting the proximity of icebergs at sea are legion, but few of them are based on natural indications. For example, the on natural indications. For example, the captain of an ocean steamer in most cases finds out when a vessel is approaching an iceberg from the men down in the engine-room. That sounds queer, but it is a fact nevertheless. It appears that when a steamship enters water considerably colder than that through which it has been going its propeller runs faster. Such water usually surrounds the vicinage of bergs for many miles. When the propeller's action, therefore, is accelerated without the steam power being increased, word is passed up to the officers on the bridge that bergs may be expected, and a close lookout for them is established. Such a phenomenon carefully studied is capable of being reduced to data which would give neiptul warning.

THE WASTEFULNESS OF PICKING UP

THE WASTEFULNESS OF PICKING UP NAILS.

William Garrett made recently the statement that wire nails are now sold so cheaply that if a carpenter drops a nail it is cheaper to let it lie than to stop and pick it up, and it is claimed that one keg out of five is never used, but goes to waste. A statistician figuring this out and assuming that it takes a carpenter ten seconds to pick up a nail, and that his time is worth 30 cents an hour. remarks that the recovery of the nail he has dropped would cost .055 cent. The money value of an individual sixpenny nail is .0077; that is, it would not pay to pick up ten nails if it took ten seconds of time worth 30 cents an hour. Ordinary men who are not very quick can, however, pick up a nail on a moderately clean floor in five seconds. Assuming that this is a better average than the ten seconds, and that we are paying the carpenter only 25 cents an hour, it will still cost to recover the nail .0347 cent, which is nearly five times the value of an individual nail. There is, therefore, a considerable factor of safety in the original calculation, and we are bound to believe that it will not pay to pick up nails. Such a calculation in prices due to inventive kenius. The lurking fallacy is that while its may not pay to stoop for each nail, it still may be worth while for an economical man at the end of his work to stoop once and sweep up in a single handful the nails he has been dropping all day.

IMPROVEMENT IN GAS GENERATORS.

B. H. Thwaite, a well-known English engineer, has invented an apparatus which enables "producer gas" to be made from any sort of coal. He uses two vertical iron furnaces, identical in every respect, standing in a foot or so of water. They are lined with fire brick, and are connected at the top by a horizontal passage. They have no grates, but toward the bottom the firebrick lining is thickened and the internal diameter contracted. Above this contraction is burning coal and below it exhausted clinker and ashes, so that the fuel is supported on a pyramidal heap of clinker, which is raked out at the top. The raking-out being done under the water in which the furnace stands.

which the tarry matters produced in the first furnace are not rid of. The chamical reactions are, of course, complex, but the general result of passing the moist air-blast into the first furnace seems to be the production of brdrogen and carbon mosoxide with hydrocarbons and other stotances. Any solid matter that may be carried over with the gases is to a considerable extent filtered away by the layer of unburnt fuel at the top of the second furnace, and is burnt when the draught is reversed. In the incandescent coal of the second furnace the hydrocarbons are, according to the investor, either converted into marsh as or decomposed with the production of carbon monoxide and hydrogen. Wherever may be the exact reactions which occur, it appears from analysis that the gas which is given off by the furnaces scarcely contains any unsaturated and about 4½ per cent of saturated hydrocarbons, while it seems that the unsaturated hydrocarbons are altogether removed by the two purifiers through which the gas passes before it is stored up for use Mr. Thwatte states that by using this gas in a small gas engine he can obtain considerable economy over the consumption of fuel with a steam engine of like size.

FAST LOCOMOTIVES.

It has been claimed that the celebrated Empire World's Fair express made 112 miles an hour, but the statement fails entirely of authentication. The figure of 102.7 miles per hour for short distances appears to be nearer the mark, and even if there were an error of a second, the rate would still have been 100 miles an hour. Between Jersey City and Philadelpha it is a common occurrence for the engines hauling the Blue Line trains to reach 90 miles an hour. Speeds of over 84 miles an hour are often made by the Philadelphia and Reading and Central New Jersey flyers. In England, a Great Northern train has made 84.1 miles an hour; while a Midiand train between London and Scotiand has run up to the same speed. The London and Northwestern has gone up to 81.8. The continent of Europe does not appear to afford any examples at all approximating the American and English records, a fact attributed to the conservative dislike of the government officials to high speed rather than to actual inability.

THE ORIGIN OF POINT LACE.

A little known example of inventive genius in woman is that afforded by Barbara Uttmann of Saxony, and her point lace so long in fashlomable use all over the world. She invented the process and apparatus for manufacturing this beautiful handiwork, which has since given employment to millions of operators, and which, in its line, has never been excelled. The apparatus looks like a long pin-cushion bristling with pins arranged to outline the pattern or design. The operator manages from ten to fifty peculiar spools, allowing the thread to feed over the pins afternately until the design is completed. The spools, or bobbins, are purpossly of different colors, so as to be easily distinguished. The process is slow and difficult to learn. Miss Uttmann founded schools, where thousands learned the process. Since her time, when inventive ability was rare even among men, her ideas have been incorporated in the construction of machinery by which the face is produced at wonderfully low rates, and yet Barbara Uttmann's lace still surpasses all.

A WIRE-WOUND FLYWHEEL.

Utmann's lace still surpasses all.

A WIRE-WOUND FLYWHEEL.

Among the most recent and novel applications of wire, perhaps none has greater interest to the mechanical world chan that presented by the new wire flywheel lately erected at the Mannesmann Tube Company's works, Germany. Heavy flywheels driven at high velocities obviously present dangers of breaking asunder from the great centrifugal force 'developed. The wheel at the factory mentioned consists of a cast-iron hub or hows, to which two steel-plate discs, or checks, about twenty feet in diameter, are botted. The peripheral space between the discs is filled in with some seventy tons of No. 5 steel wire, completely wound around the hub, and the tensile resistance thus obtained is far superior to any casting. This huge flywheel is driven at a speed of 240 revolutions per minute, or a peripheral relocity of about 2.8 miles per minute (250 feet per second, approximately) which is, nearly three times the average speed of any express train in the world. The length of wire upon such a constructed flywheel would be about 250 miles. The use of opaper is also regarded with, favor as a face for large flywheels, the tensile strength of paper being enormous; and it is quite possible that some of the new big flywheels will be built up with a paper rim.

A Wonderful Task.

A Wonderful Task.

(Household Words:) Jules Curzon, a Polish mechanic, who was presented with a gold medal for his inventions, performed a most extraordinary thing when he succeeded in manufacturing a complete watch in the space of eight hours, and from materials which any other watchmaker would have looked at contemptuously: it appears that the Czar of Russia, hearing of the marvelous genius of Curzon, determined to put him to the test, and forwarded him a box containing a few copper nails, some wood chippings, a piece of broken glass, an old cracked china cup, some wire, and a few cribbage-board pegs, with the request that he should transform them into a timepiece. Nothing pegs, with the request that he should transform them into a timeplece. Nothing daunted, and perceiving a golden opportunity for winning favor at the court, Curson set about his task with enthusiasm, and in the almost incredibly short space of eight hours had dispatched a wonderfully-constructed watch to the Czar, who was so surprised and delighted at the work that he sent for the maker, and conferred upon him several distinctions, as well as granting him a pension. The case of the watch was made of china, while the works were simply composed of the odds and ends accompanying the old cup. Not only did it keep good time, but only required winding once every three or four days. This remarkable watch is believed to be still in the possession of the Russian royal family.

A kind of influenza had struck the community all of a heap, but the Rev. Dr. Goodman's congregation turned out as usual and was composing itself, though with much cougaing and sneezing to listen to the regular Sunday merning sermoon. "If the—h'm—brsthen—h'm—will be as quiet as possible," said the faithful pastor, making another heroic effort to clear his throat, "I will—k-choe! h'm—offer a few coughs this morning suggested by the twenty-seventh yerse of the sixteenth chapter," etc.

and Personals.

PASADENA, Feb. 24.—(Special Correspondence.) A number of Pasadena people and some Councilmen are expecting to go to Los Angeles Monday morning to hear the arguments in the matter of the injunction suit brought by L. P. Hansen against the Southern Pacific Railroad Company to prevent the occupation of Broadway by a steam railroad. In this case it is cxected that the confrowersy will be tried on its merits, and the legality of the Coun-cil's acts in granting the franchise passed upon. There are now pending three injunc-tion suits against the Southern Pacific, one brought by the Southern California Rail-road Company, one by William Morgan, a Broadway property-owner, and one by Col. Hansen, vice-president of the Pasadena and Los Angeles Electric Railway Com-pany.

DROPPED DEAD.

A little before 11 o'clook this morning D. H. Dutton fell dead upon the sidewalk at the corner of Colorado street and Fair Oaks avenue. He had been standing at that point some minutes, wasting for a car to take him to the Friends Church, when suddenly the bystanders saw him drop the crutch he had used since he was The deceased was 66 years old, having been born in Delaware county, Pa., January 3, 1829. Those who knew Mr. Dutton loved him for his quiet gentleness and innate goodness, and truly sympathize with the family, to whom his sudden death proved such a blow. Though death came so unexpectedly it found him ready for it, as he has been since his beloved wife preceded him to the other shore ten years ago. He was a member of the Fnielids Church, whither he was bound on his last earthly journey. The remains will be embalmed and taken to Chester, Pa., for interment. Coroner Campbell, who had been sent for, impaneled a jury this afternoon and after deliberation the verdict was given that the deceased, D. H. Dutton, died of heart trouble.

Another disgraceful row occurred about 4 o'clock this evening near the East Colorado-atreet car barns. Four or five individuals who had been visiting the place of call just outside the city limits got into a free fight, as the result of which one John Cox, who has before given trouble to the pelice, was badly pounded by the officers. He is now in jail and the others are fugitives.

Rev. J. T. Ford preached to a very large congregation at the First Congregational Church this morning. He presented the cause of home missions, and the work in Southern California, of which he is in charge. The church joined this evening in the anniversary inesting of the Y.M.C.A. at the tabernacie. SANTA ANA, Feb. 24.—(Special Correspondence.) Pablo Domingues, a prominent resident of this county was struck train at Yorba on Saturday evening and killed. The deceased was a prominent resident of that community, having lived there for many years, and being a brother-in-law of Felipe Yarba, whose family is one of the oldest in the county. Domington had been to Santa Annual Annual Communication of the county. minguez had been to Santa Ana during the day and returned to Yorba, where he tarried for a few minutes on some busithe day and returned to Yorba, where he tarried for a few minutes on some business matters, just previous to the time he had intended starting over to his home. Upon meeting a little girl along the railroad track just below the old salcon building, west of the Yorba store, he stopped to talk to her for a few minutes. While thus engaged the south-bound passenger train started up from the station, it came along at a fair rate of speed, just as Dominguez bade the little girl good evening and stepped from behind a string of box cars on the switch onto the main line. Before he realized his perilous situation the train was upon him, and the engine lifted him into the air, throwing him over to one side of the track. The engineer stopped the train, however, as quickly as possible and the train crew ran back to the assistance of the unfortunate man, but he was found to be in a dying condition, and soon after his removal to a friend's house he succumbed to his injuries. Coroner Clark held an inquest over the remains today (Sunday,) the verdict being in accordance with the facts above stated.

The Orange Post wants the people of Orange, especially the truit-growers, to manifest more of a disposition to stand up and say a few words at the propertime about the resources of the country about Orange and its capabilities in the way of producing so many different kinds of products. It argues on the line that the people have a good thing and should all stand up and say so to the world, and not be weak-kneed about it either. In a recent issue it says, in regard to the fruit interests and the matter of sending out floating banners with every car:

"Many carloads of excellent oranges have already been sent out from the Orange packing-houses this season and more will follow. As they travel swiftly across the country, these cars have nothing on them to indicate whence they came or what they contain. Riverside and other localities less favored than ours biften their advantages and products from one end of the country to the other and the consequence is their lands and fruit have a world-wide reputation and command a ready market. It is conceded that the country about Orange is equal to the best in the State. Why are we so slow and learful about letting it be known? A banner or placard, bearing a terse and legible inscription placed on every car of fruit sent out from Orange, would be a swift and eloquent messenger, speaking to every city, hamlet and rural district through which the tra'n might pass, of our orange groves with their wealth of golden fruit. Ten dollars will purchase 300 such bannenrs. The Post will give $2.50 of that amount. Who will take the matter up and carry it to a successful is.

Superintendent Gardner of the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation Company desires to announce that residents of the valley desiring water with which to fill cisterns, water young trees, or prepare for the planting of trees, should put in their applications at once, as it is expected that the water company will commence the work of cementing the main canal about the 4th of March. This work will be taken up at the point near old Santa Ana, to which the cementing has already been completed, and carried on down the main canal a distance of three-quarters of a nille or more. It is expected that the work will require about four weeks for its completion and it is very essential that there should be no interruption during his time. The plan is to turn the water into the upper ditch about the middle of this week and it is important that all orders for water she promptly filed, so that they can be filled, before turning the water cut of both ditches in preparation for the cement work and necessary repairs.

Fifty men or more will be employed on the work. A cooking-room and dining-room are now being erected for the accommodation of the men, near where their labors will begin.

CO-O-PERATIVE MARKETING. OF INTEREST TO WATER CONSUMERS

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING.

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING.

The co-operative marketing of citrus fruit in Orange county has proved so advantageous to the growers that the producers of deciduous fruits and nuts are now coming together that they too may derive some benefit from a united policy in the handling of fruit crops. The co-operative plan is surely the more profitable way, year in and year out, to dispose of all the products of the soil; and, from present indications, the producers in this county are beginning to realize that fact.

In speaking of this matter the Fullerton Tribune of recent date says:

"The association shipped seven carloads of oranges this week. The exchange system is growing in favor with the producers. The results attained thus far are highly satisfactory. The cost of marketing the fruit is reduced to a minimum, prices are kept up and the growers getting profits instead of the middlemen. So successful is the system as applied to the orange crop that the deciduous fruit-growers are taking steps to organize for the purpose of marketing this year's crop in the same manner. The walnut-growers are already organized and have found the system a great benefit to them. The dried druit men, bee-keepers, dairymen and other producers are also talking of co-operative marketing."

After deducting for possible overestimate in certain associations the number has been placed at 789,500 boxes. One-half of these are navels and other budded fruit, which bring the highest prices in the market. Counting the whole number at an average price of $2 per box, and there would come into the valley from oranges alone $1,539,000. To make sure, the lemon crop, which is by no means small, is thrown in for good measure. Add to this the amount to be realized from raisins, dried fruits, altalfa and other farm products, and there will not be less than $2,000,000 come into Riverside. There are now only 379,792 bearing orange trees, out of a total of 1,043,781 in the valley.

The plaintiffs pray for an order restraining an assessment being made on their lands for the purpose of paying the interest on the $765,000 bonds recently issued and placed by the Bear Valley Company, and restraining the district collector from selling said lands fortaxes levied for the purpose mentioned. The complaint avers that the execution and delivery of said bonds were in violation of the Wright act. They refuse to pay this interest on the ground that if the contracts of the people with the Bear Valley Company are not of any account, as is claimed by the company, then the bonds are not valid which were turned over to the company. It is represented that the value of A. J. Condee's property in the irrigation district, affected by the action, is $25,000, and of J. L. Means $10,000. SANTA BARBARA COUNTY.

Cumbersome and Slow-going

SANTA BARBARA, Feb. 24.—(Special Correspondence.) Santa Barbara has one vehicle which may justly lay claim to being absolutely unique. There probably does not exist, throughout the length or breadth of the country, such another breadth of the country, such another street-going craft as that extraordinary invention of Mr. Gates, the Bath-street foundryman, which is popularly known as "The Snail." In appearance and character this vehicle divides honors between an old-fashioned steam locomotive, a truck and a hend-car. It is propelled by a cumbrous steam engine, and a series of big cogs on its great wheels makes the track it leaves along the streets a puzzle to the initiated. The distinguishing characteristic of "Gates's snail" are its phenomenal draught powers and its equally phenomenal slowness of locomotion. The owner uses it for the purpose of hauling heavy loads from the wharf to his foundry, and it is eadd to have, upon one occasion, drawn a train of twenty wagon-loads of stuff from the wharf, although it was necessary to uncouple the wagons at every stuf from the wharf, although it was necessary to uncouple the magons at every turn. This useful monster is the terror of the equine population. Even horses standing in stables in the neighborhood, who should have become accustomed to it long ago, will jump and scream in their stalls, framic with terror, when the great machine starts upon one of its leisurely trips.

These kindred spirits had debated the question of going to Alaska this spring for some time before their departure, and as both Byers and Elliott had already been there, it did not require very much persuasion to get Steadman to join in While the richness of the Yukon region in mineral wealth is well known, Alaska has other resources yet undeveloped, which afford chances of fortune even greater than gold mining. Wrangel is noted for a good quality of garnets, Mt. St. Elias for very beautiful amethysts, and now some fine diamonds have been found on the iava-sloped sides of Mt. Edgecombe: not the poor imitations sheaply soid under the name of Alaskan illamonds, but the simon-pure bits of crystallized carbon that mean a small fortune to the finder. It is only a comparatively short time ago that a prospector brought some brilliant-appearing lava ashes to Sitka, and, as they could not be identified they were forwarded to a San Francisco expert, who advised that an investigation should be made, as the pumice stone and scoriae composing the lava contained those particular elements have been found. placing beyond doubt that real diamond ground exists close to Sitka. When the snows melt efforts will be made to reach the extinct crater of Mt. Edgecombe, and under the direction of a San Francisco expert the lava beds will be examined with a view to determining where the gems come from. Many prospectors are at Sitka witing to join in the search on their own account and the number will be swelled when the three adventurers from Southern California make, their appearance on the seene.

Mt. Edgecombe has for years been viewed by minereloxists with curiosity.
